

Main Title La Belgique en toutes lettres : Le pays ; L'histoire et les hommes ; Tranches de vie / Véronique Jago-Antoine, Hugues Robaye, Marc Quaghebeur.

Published/Created Liège: Luc Pire, 2008.

Description
3 vol. (283, 459, 303 p.)

ISBN
978-2-50700-156-8

Cote
MLA 25307/0001-0003

Other titles
Belgium in Letters: Le pays; L'histoire et les hommes; Tranches de vie

Subjects
Belgian literature

Notes
Anthology
Essays

Series
Espace Nord

Type of material
book

An itinerary of more than three hundred and fifty texts, marked by the greatest writers as the beautiful witnesses who were unjustly forgotten by Belgians but also by foreign travelers: Sigmund Freud, Victor Hugo, Rainer Maria Rilke, Jean Cocteau rubbing shoulders with the Prince of Ligne, Émile Verhaeren, Camille Lemonnier, Max Elskamp, Henri Michaux, Georges Simenon, Marcel Thiry, Marguerite Yourcenar, Henry Bauchau, Dominique Rolin, Pierre Mertens, Pierre Alechinsky, Eugène Savitzkaya, Jean-Pierre Verheggen, Jean-Philippe Toussaint, Caroline Lamarche...

Let more than two hundred authors from the fifteenth century onward, from the North Sea to the Ardennes, between Campine and Gaume, be unveiled, revealing that which intrigued them, fascinated them or hurt them.

The texts, often astonishing, offer curiosities to all. They speak in turns of a physical place; of History and those who made it or were made to suffer in it; of ways of life, of love and of work present in their respective milieus. With, at the end of each stage, a way of passing to the foreign, an irrepressible, fantastic surge... A compendium more than an anthology, this journey to the heart of landscapes, histories, and of men gives Belgium a rich image far from clichés.