This volume contains an index of people and an index of Michel de Ghelderode's texts mentioned in the ten volumes of his correspondence which covers the period from 1919 to 1962 and presents a choice of more than three thousand important letters, most of which are annotated and placed into context.

The index of people gathers, apart from the names of more than five hundred published correspondents, a certain number of people designated by family connections, by circumlocutions or by humorous appellations, and by aliases or sobriquets.

Ghelderode's index of texts also includes drafts, even those that are unfinished.

Furthermore, it includes interviews, both oral and written, with Ghelderode, and not only the Ostende interviews but others as well. The secrets that they contain complete and clarify the letters.

Several facsimiles of Ghelderode's notebooks and dedications are published in the 10 volumes enrich this index. They are presented in chronological order so that they reveal the pleasure that Ghelderode took in embellishing some of his missives with curious drawings, which were most often humoristic and/or erotic.
